

Use this board game to help kids learn about and practice conversation skills.

Players will travel around the board as they decide whether or not they should “jump” into a conversation.

They will also think about what they could say if they want to enter a conversation.

Includes 24 Scenario Cards

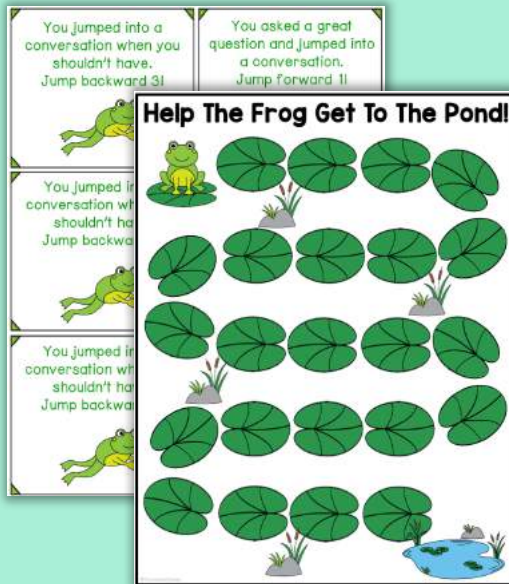

The scenario cards include prompts that will help students think about:

- Whether or not they should “jump” into a conversation.
- What they should say if they want to enter a conversation.

Includes 6 Game Cards And A Game Board

Mix the game cards in with the scenario cards to make the game more fun! The game cards will cause the players to move forward or backward on the board.

Includes A Visual Aid

This can be used as a visual aid during the game, or displayed in your classroom or office.

It includes tips that will help students with their conversation skills.

What People Are Saying...

“This is a fun way to work on initiating conversations! The kids were totally engaged!”
–Melodee K.

“Used this with a 1st-grade student, and they loved it! This is a great tool to help with conversation skills.” –Ashley H.

“Love this game for my students! It is fun and engaging in addition to teaching them acceptable behaviors.” –Hadia K.

Want More Spring Resources? Bundle & Save!

These activities are part of a bundle that includes 6 spring-themed counseling and SEL resources.

They will help your students learn about important SEL concepts like self-esteem, social skills, coping skills and more!

See The Bundle Here